"Where is Meenachechi.?" Nandu thought. Let me look in her house.

"Door is closed. She may be in the kitchen." He went to the back side. The kitchen door was kept open.

"Meenachechi." He called. No answer. He went inside. He heard the snoring sound of Balettan. He looked up. A bottle full of red gilebies in the shelf. He went forward and took a stool, stood on it, tiptoed to get the bottle. Suddenly it slipped and fell down.

"Oh! What's it? Balettan shouted. He got up.

"Meena, Is it you? What's the sound? He asked.

"Meena" again he called out.

Slowly Nandu came to Balettan.

"Grandpa, it's me, Nandu

"Nandu You are here, why didn't you come to school?" Meena asked while entering the house.

"Today I'm not well." Nandu replied.

"Okay, I've taken your saplings too" Meena answered.

"Saplins? Who gave you?"

"Our School echo club is distributing saplings to all students. Our teacher told we should preserve trees and forest. Deforestation leads to climate change." Meena said.

"That's true. That's why we don't have water in our rivers and wells". Janucheche came in.

"Then why can't we plant trees in the barren land near the river?" Nandu asked.

"But it's panchayath's place. We should get permission." Janucheche said.

"Janucheche, you are the ward member. Why can't we write a letter to Panchayath President for permission." Meena asked.

"Yes, let us write a letter to the Panchayath President for permission to plant saplings in Public Place".
